this book addresses the notorious split between the two fields of cultural studies and political economy drawing on the works of harold innis theodor adorno raymond williams richard hoggart e p thompson and other major theorists in the two fields robert e babe shows that political economy can be reconciled to certain aspects of cultural studies particularly with regards to cultural materialism uniting the two fields has proven to be a complex undertaking though it makes practical sense given the close interaction between political economy and cultural studies babe examines the evolution of cultural studies over time and its changing relationship with political economy the intersections between the two fields center around three subjects the cultural biases of money the time space dialectic and the dialectic of information stuart hall conceptualized his time at the centre for contemporary cultural studies as a series of interruptions it was this fluidity that gave rise to hall s conception of cultural studies as a moving target a fusion of a range of disciplinary approaches that was uniquely influenced by politics in the world beyond the academy the political commitments of those at the centre were wide ranging and from its embrace of collective ways of research and decision making to its deployment of various strands of european marxist theory had a critical impact on the centre s working practices yet as the diverse work of many of these same scholars has shown the political climate of the present day is almost unrecognizable from that of the mid 1960s to the mid 1980s arguably the most productive period in the centre s history cultural studies 50 years on explores how the political social and cultural contexts of the early 21st century influenced the object and method of doing cultural studies in bringing together a historical reassessment of the centre with present day questions regarding the future of the field the aim is not to reduce cultural studies to the work of a single now defunct institution instead it aims to utilize what is a critical moment in the trajectory of the field in order to take stock of where it has come from and to explore where it might be going this volume claims that interdisciplinarity and translation constitute the two main challenges for cultural studies today these conceptual issues inter and trans express themselves within specific historical and cultural contexts interdisciplinarity is linked with the ongoing process of the institutionalisation of cultural studies in national academies but also increasingly internationally comparatively and to a certain extent even globally cf cultural studies of global culture translation concerns cultural studies both as an object or product and as a subject or producer of translation processes cultural studies is the result of translation translates and is being translated the essays in this volume therefore relate these various ongoing cultural linguistic and institutional translation processes to political and ethical issues of internationalisation and globalisation the contributions draw their originality and strength from strategically crossing disciplinary and national boundaries they deliberately ignore the question of what may be proper to cultural studies and instead problematise the notions of propriety and belonging as a reading practice cultural studies in these pages is performed through adaptations and combinations of theory and critical practice the volume should be of interest to everyone concerned with cultural studies role in promoting intellectual debate within an increasingly international and globalised public sphere while the term culture has come to be very widely used in both popular and academic discourse it has a variety of meanings and the differences among these have not been given sufficient attention this book explores these meanings and identifies some of the problems associated with them as well as examining the role that values should play in cultural analysis the development of four very different conceptions of culture is traced from the nineteenth century onwards a notion of aesthetic cultivation associated with matthew arnold the evolutionary view of culture characteristic of nineteenth century anthropology the idea of diverse cultures characteristic of twentieth and twenty first century anthropology and a conception of culture as a process of situated meaning making found today across anthropology sociology and cultural studies these conceptions of culture are interrogated and a reformulation of the concept is sketched this book will be of interest to students and scholars across a variety of fields including anthropology sociology cultural studies and education
